Terror Alert at High

SECURITY HIKE: A D.C. police officer patrols in front of the World Bank building on Sunday, one of two financial institutions in Washington listed as potential targets in the latest government terror warning.

'Excruciating' Level of Detail

WASHINGTON | The government provided details Sunday of new intelligence it obtained in the past 36 to 72 hours that led it to increase the threat level against financial institutions, including several specific buildings.

A senior intelligence official discussed the information only on condition of anonymity. The official described "excruciating detail" and meticulous planning "indicative of al Qaeda."

The official said the intelligence gathered from several sources indicated scouting had been done to evaluate security in and around these buildings; track the flow of pedestrians and find the best places for reconnaissance. Other details included construction of the buildings; traffic patterns; locations of hospitals and police departments; and on which days of the week security at the buildings was the lightest.

The official said he had not seen such extraordinary detail in his 24 years of intelligence work. (AP)

D.C. financial institutions named as potential targets

WASHINGTON | The federal government warned Sunday of possible al Qaeda terrorist attacks against "iconic" financial institutions in Washington, New York City and Newark, N.J., saying a confluence of chilling intelligence in recent days pointed to a car or truck bomb.

In an unprecedented action, the government named specific buildings in densely populated areas as among the potential targets, including the International Monetary Fund and World Bank buildings in Washington.

At a press conference, Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge cited explosives as the likely mode of attack, as opposed to a chemical or biological attack or a radiological "dirty" bomb.

The government's threat level has been raised to orange, or high alert, for financial institutions in the three cities but will remain at yellow, or elevated, elsewhere.

Ridge said the government took the unprecedented step of naming particular buildings because of the level of specificity of the intelligence.

"This is not the usual chatter," he said. "This is multiple sources that involve extraordinary detail."

The institutions in Washington and New York said they would open for business Monday, with employees expected to report to work. Nearly 10,000 employees work at the IMF and World Bank. JENNIFER C. KERR (AP)

DAY AT THE RACES Here Comes The Sun

The humming of engines and whizzing of vehicles was intense at the Formula One track in the Japanese city of Suzuka on Sunday — that is, until it got rainy. Overcast skies threw a bit of a damper on the annual solar car race, but teams of racers continued until the end of the two-day, eight-hour competition, which has been held annually since 1992. Japan's Panda-san team overtook the Saki team, also from Japan, to finish 63 laps in 6:05.55 to capture the F1A Dream Cup title. The Saki team's car ran out of power during the race. (EXPRESS)

ANIMAL WATCH Showtime With Apollo

After escaping from the circus, a white tiger alarmed picnickers and motorists Saturday on what for him apparently was a calm, half-mile stroll through an unfamiliar urban jungle. The animal, named Apollo, was safely recaptured in the Queens section of New York City — but not before the sight of him on the Jackie Robinson Parkway caused a multi-car accident. Four adults and one child suffered minor injuries. When the tiger lay down on a nearby street, six police officers and the tiger's trainer arrived and coaxed it back into its cage. ## CRIME The Pillory Must Have Been Full

A woman in Salisbury, Md., who stole $4.52 worth of fuel was ordered to stand outside the gas station Friday wearing a sandwich board sign that declared: "I was caught stealing gas." Sherelle Purnell obeyed the court order, although by the time she arrived 90 minutes late to her noon sentence, the crowd of people that gathered to watch her had dispersed. Purnell, 18, who was caught on surveillance tape speeding away from the gas pump, walked along the convenience shop's grassy storefront as passing drivers honked horns and made catcalls. (AP)

Kerry Expands on Iraq Plan

Democratic nominee plans to negotiate for international help

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO | Democratic presidential nominee John Kerry said he plans to use private negotiations to persuade other heads of state to assist in reconstructing Iraq, but he does not envision sending more U.S. troops there.

Kerry said on CBS' "Face the Nation" that a new president can make a "fresh start" with world leaders who opposed the war. He is running against President Bush in Nov. 2 elections.

"If we demonstrate an America that has a foreign policy that is smarter, more engaged ... and more respectful of the world, we're going to bring people to our side," Kerry said. "We're not only not going to put additional troops there, that's the way to bring our troops home."

In a separate interview broadcast Sunday on CNN's "Late Edition," Kerry declined to specify a precise timetable for withdrawing the 140,000 U.S. troops in Iraq. But he did say, "I would consider it an unsuccessful policy if I hadn't brought significant numbers of troops back within the first term."

Kerry and running mate John

Edwards did taped interviews with CBS, CNN, ABC and Fox, all of which were broadcast Sunday.

Kerry also said on CBS that he is convinced that a Kerry administration could get NATO involved in Iraq. NEDRA PICKLER (AP)

Computer Glitch Grounds 2 Airlines

DALLAS | A computer glitch grounded American Airlines and US Airways flights from coast to coast Sunday morning, causing delays that lasted all day. A computer company official said human error was the likely cause.

American had its planes back up after two hours, while US

Airways flights were grounded for about three.

"It appears to be unintentional user error," said Jeff Baum of Electronic Data Systems Corp., the company that hosts the computer system used by both airlines.

Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Diane Spitaliere said both carriers asked the FAA's air traffic controllers to help communicate with planes to keep them on the ground.

US Airways spokeswoman Amy Kudwa said the airline's flight-operation database malfunctioned. A similar problem affected American's flight plan system, grounding about 150 flights, spokesman John Hotard said. SHEILA FLYNN (AP)

Bush Intel Proposals Nearing

President could issue orders on 9/11 reforms as early as Monday

WASHINGTON | President George W. Bush will issue orders as early as Monday to implement some reforms suggested by the Sept. 11 commission, but White House officials still are wrangling over the best way to create a new national intelligence czar.

Presidential advisers crafting the package of reforms Bush is to announce are not opposed to the panel's idea for a national director of intelligence, but were still deciding whether the post should be placed inside the White House, a senior administration official said Sunday on condition of anonymity.

The president will embrace the recommendations, "but that doesn't mean everything is going to be exactly the same" as the panel has suggested, the official said.

Bush, who wants to be seen as moving forward on intelligence reform, also is under pressure from the members of the bipartisan Sept. 11 commission, who begin a national tour this week to share their report with the public and draw attention to U.S. intelligence reforms.

Business Schools Losing Their Luster

Number of applications sent to traditional MBA programs drops

Is business school losing its buzz? After a golden era for the MBA degree, new figures show demand for the traditional, two-year master's of business administration program is slumping.

More than three-quarters of programs responding to a recent Graduate Management Admission Council survey reported their applications declined last year. More remarkably, 41 percent reported their applications were down more than 20 percent.

The GMAC, a business schools organization, thinks total applications to business schools were flat or down only slightly. But that figure can be misleading because students can apply to many schools.

A better indication of student interest may be the GMAT, the standardized test for business school admission. As of June 30, 7 percent fewer GMAT tests had been taken compared to last year, and the figure is down more than 25 percent compared to the record year of 2002.

The good news for business schools is that interest in their often more-profitable executive MBA degrees — shorter programs for older students who continue working — is strong. More than half of those programs reported an increase in applications.

Still, two-year MBA programs remain the primary focus of many business schools.

During the 1990s, business schools were hot as many sought training to ride the Internet wave. They also flourished during the bust, as many people viewed business school as an agreeable way to sit out the economic downturn then return to the job market with a better credential. JUSTIN POPE (AP)

Another Reason to Eat Your Veggies

CONCORD, N.H. | There goes another excuse for not eating more vegetables.

A study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture found that though many people say cost prevents them from eating more produce, consumers can get the recommended three servings of fruits and four servings of vegetables daily for just 64 cents.

The study, which is based on information collected by A.C. Nielsen from 7,195 homes in 1999, looked at how consumers spent nearly $223 billion at supermarkets, other retail stores and farmers' markets. It did not include restaurants.

A department spokeswoman does not believe produce prices have changed substantially since the data were gathered.

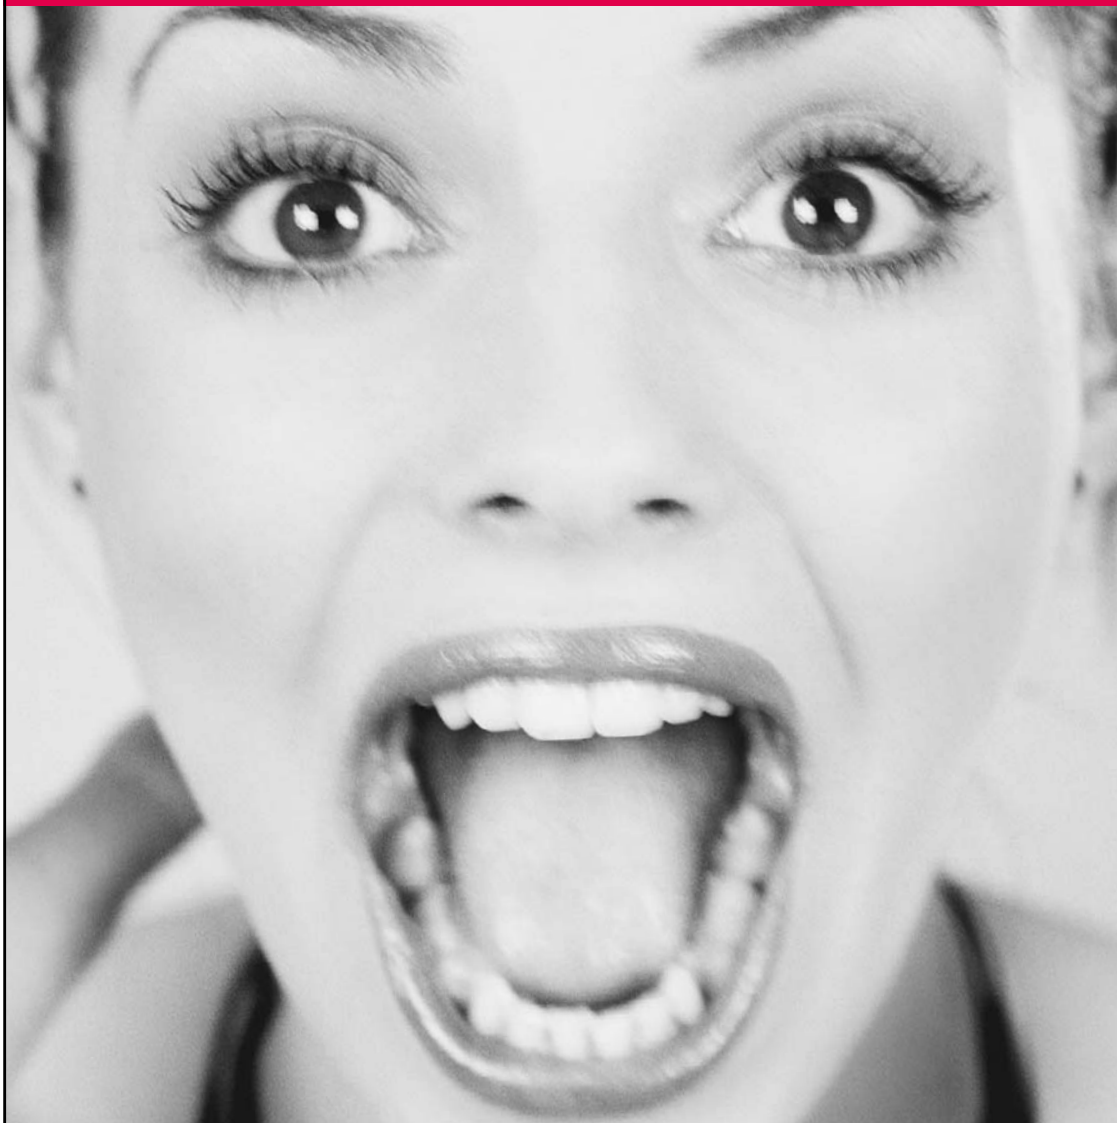

Among 27 fruits the USDA examined, Americans bought the most pounds of bananas and ate the most servings of apples. Of 30 vegetables considered, people consumed

Blasts Hit 5 Churches Across Iraq

At least 11 people die in first major attack on Christian minority

BAGHDAD | Assailants triggered a coordinated series of explosions outside five churches in Baghdad and Mosul during Sunday evening services, killing 11 people and wounding more than 50 in the first major assault on Iraq's Christian minority since the 15-month-old insurgency began.

At least four of the explosions were car bombings. They came just minutes apart, hitting four churches in Baghdad and one in Mosul, about 220 miles north of the capital. The attacks did not appear to be suicide bombings, U.S. military and Iraqi officials said.

The Baghdad attacks killed 10 people and injured more than 40 others, according to a U.S. military statement. The Mosul blast killed one person and injured 11 others, police Maj. Fawaz Fanaan said.

Muslim clerics condemned the violence and offered condolences to Iraq's 750,000-member Christian community.

"This is a cowardly act and targets all Iraqis," Abdul Hadi al-Daraji, spokesman for radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr, told Al-Jazeera television.

Mohammed Fadil al-Samara'i, an official with the Sunni Iraqi Islamic Party, blamed terrorist groups and others "who profit from creating civil disturbances in Iraq."

The attacks signaled a vast change in tactics for insurgents, who have focused many previous attacks on U.S. forces, Iraqi officials and police. OMAR SINAN (AP)

Report: 217 Die In Paraguay After Supermarket Fire

ASUNCION, PARAGUAY | A fire roared through a supermarket on the outskirts of the capital Sunday, causing at least one floor to collapse. Television reports said more than 217 people died and dozens were injured, but officials haven't yet confirmed a death toll.

The fire broke out at the Ycua Bolanos supermarket while it was crowded with Sunday midday shoppers, sweeping through the multi-floored complex that houses a food court, supermarket, and parking garage.

Witnesses said they heard an explosion before the fire swept through the building, said district police commander Aristide Cabral.

The government had no official death toll hours after the fire erupted and officials were still trying to determine its cause. (AP)

90% of Afghans Set for Vote

U.N. finds most eligible voters are registered

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Nine out of 10 eligible Afghans have signed up for landmark October elections, the United Nations said Sunday, a resounding endorsement of a democratic experiment supposed to help Afghanistan turn its back on years of debilitating war.

First tallies since the eight-month registration drive began winding down show that 8.7 million of an estimated 9.8 million eligible voters have collected ID cards for the election. Forty-one percent of those registered were women.

"The participation is amazing," U.N. spokesman David Singh said. "There was a lot of skepticism about this process at the beginning, but the targets have been fulfilled."

But officials say registration teams will have to continue working for weeks yet in the perilous south and southeast, where a virulent Taliban insurgency has stepped up attacks on election workers and Afghan and U.S. security forces.

Nevertheless, the turnout is a relief for the United Nations, which has overcome misgivings about Afghanistan's readiness for elections under strong pressure from the United States. The vote had been delayed from June because of slow progress disarming warlords' private armies. A vote for Parliament was put off until next spring. STEPHEN GRAHAM (AP)

Princess Di Memorial Shut Down

Fountain is closed after 3 visitors slip, injuring themselves

LONDON | It was meant to be the perfect tribute to the "people's princess" — a pool of water designed for children to frolic in.

But bad luck and apparent poor planning have bedeviled the Princess Diana Memorial Fountain in London's Hyde Park. On Sunday, the circular moat lay drained of water behind a 7-foot-high fence.

The $6.5 million fountain, opened in a grand ceremony by Queen Elizabeth II less than a month ago, was closed indefinitely after three people, including a child, slipped and injured themselves while wading in it.

Environmental experts blamed the designers, claiming it should have been obvious that a granite moat combined with flowing fresh water would be a breeding ground for slippery algae.

Royal Parks said the fountain will remain closed until independent health and safety experts give their approval. JANE WARDELL (AP)

Arafat Loyalists Storm Meeting of Fatah Reformists

NABLUS, WEST BANK | Masked gunmen loyal to Yasser Arafat broke up a conference of reformists within the Palestinian leader's own political movement who were calling for a "revolution."

The incident on Sunday is just the latest in weeks of Palestinian unrest centered on charges of corruption in Arafat's administration.

About 20 men burst into the conference of more than 70 officials from Arafat's Fatah movement, firing over their heads and claiming that the conference was an anti-Arafat conspiracy. No one was injured.

The meeting was meant to discuss reform and new elections for the Fatah leadership, which were last held 15 years ago.

In a separate development, Mohammed Dahlan, a former security chief and powerful figure in the Gaza Strip, threatened huge demonstrations unless Arafat reforms his government within 10 days.

"Arafat now sits on the bodies and ruins of Palestinians at a time when they most need support," Dahlan was quoted Sunday as saying by a Kuwaiti newspaper. (AP)

District Goes on High Alert

Mayor tells residents to go about daily lives

WASHINGTON | District of Columbia officials elevated the city's threat level to orange, or high alert, after the federal government warned terrorists may attack financial institutions in Washington, New York and Newark, N.J.

Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge said there is intelligence that terrorists are plotting car or truck-bomb attacks. The International Monetary Fund and the World Bank buildings were named as potential targets.

Barbara Childs-Pair, director of the D.C. Emergency Management Agency, said meeting the federal government's request meant putting the city government and fire and police departments on a higher alert status, which essentially raises the entire city's security level.

At a news conference, Mayor Anthony A. Williams said city leaders would continue to meet with federal law enforcement agencies and private security companies to ensure security levels are maintained.

Williams urged citizens to be vigilant, but to also continue their everyday activities. "Our priority is to ensure that we have the proper balance between a safe city and an Metropolitan Police Chief Charles H. Ramsey said teams of bomb-sniffing dogs would sweep the area around the World Bank and IMF headquarters. Closed-circuit security cameras have been turned on, patrols will increase, and officers will conduct more traffic stops of trucks, limousines, and SUVs traveling in the area.

District Faces Decision On Controversial Casino

Washington Post report raises questions about project backers

WASHINGTON | The D.C. Board of Elections and Ethics must decide this week whether supporters of a video lottery casino can move forward with their efforts to put the initiative on the November ballot.

The board has held eight days of hearings on allegations that casino supporters violated election laws during their petition drive.

A Washington Post report into some of the investors has raised new questions about the project.

Rob Newell has said North Atlantic Investments has been paying for the slots campaign, but general manager Steve Silver told the Post that North Atlantic is borrowing money from another company whose owners have failed to qualify for gambling licenses in several states.

Newell also reportedly has managed a California hotel that went bankrupt. He failed to get a gambling license for a casino he owned, and he worked for a Washington state investment firm accused of swindling old, sick people. (AP)

Arrington's In Regular-Season Form

Pro-Bowl linebacker talks a big game in camp

REDSKINS | LaVar Arrington's words were introspective, defensive and measured, a jaded byproduct of four NFL years of high expectations and not a single winning season to show for it.

"We've been like the laughing-stock of our division the last few years," Arrington said. "Dallas-Redskins rivalry — we've got to win some of those games. We haven't held up our end of the bargain."

The Washington Redskins opened training camp this weekend, but the three-time Pro Bowl linebacker's opinions are in mid-season form.

Few players are more intense and hard-hitting than Arrington, and he has the ability to change a game — or a season — with a big play, but he said he hasn't received his due.

It hasn't helped that the Redskins over the years have constantly changed everything around him. He goes into this season with his fifth defensive coordinator in five years and two new starting linebackers next to him.

"I believe that if I had an opportunity to be in a system and stay in a system and be comfortable within it, who knows how good I could be. I know I'm not getting any younger," said Arrington, 26.

Arrington said the setbacks he's faced will make him appreciate winning even more — and he thinks the time of winning could finally be at hand now that Hall of Fame coach Gibbs has returned.

"The tide could be turning. I've been around long enough not to put my foot in my mouth, but we're going to be a good team," Arrington said. "This is going to be a good team because it is a well-coached team. It's never lacked talent. It's been a matter of getting everybody on the same page." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

In Brief

BASEBALL

Maddux Denied 300th Win In Cubs' Comeback Victory

Greg Maddux will have to wait for win No. 300. Maddux came out after six innings with Chicago trailing by a run Sunday, so he wasn't around for a rally that carried Nomar Garciaparra and the Cubs to a 6-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. The right-hander wound up with a no-decision, and his next attempt to become the 22nd major league pitcher to reach 300 wins probably will come Saturday in San Francisco against Barry Bonds and the Giants. (AP)

AUTO RACING

Points Leader Johnson Dominates Pocono Raceway

Jimmie Johnson pulled off a clean sweep at Pocono Raceway. Johnson dominated at the track for the second time in seven weeks, building on his NASCAR Nextel Cup points lead and winning the Pennsylvania 500 on Sunday. Mark Martin continued a recent string of solid finishes by placing second, and Kasey Kahne was third. Greg Biffle and Jeff Gordon rounded out the top five. (AP)

Federer Drops Roddick

Roger Federer of Switzerland won his third straight title Sunday, beating Andy Roddick of the United States 7-5, 6-3 in the final of the $2.5 million Tennis Masters Canada. The top-ranked Federer, who won his eighth event of the year, extended his winning streak to 23 matches and raised his career record against the No. 2-ranked Roddick to 7-1. (AP)

Yankees Take 3 of 4 From O's

Rodriguez leads New York to 11th victory in 13 tries vs. Baltimore

BASEBALL | Alex Rodriguez homered for the third straight day, Hideki Matsui keyed a five-run fourth with a two-run double and the New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 9-7 Sunday.

Tony Clark hit a two-run homer in the fourth off Rodrigo Lopez and Kenny Lofton also connected as the Yankees gained their 11th win in 13 games over Baltimore this season despite being outthit 14-9.

New York took three of four in the weekend series.

With the win, and Boston's 4-3 loss to Minnesota, the Yankees took a season-high 9 1/2-game lead over the Red Sox in the American Yankees third baseman Alex Rodriguez tags out Jerry Hairston on Sunday.

League East.

Orlando Hernandez baffled Baltimore for five innings, striking out nine. New York struggled against Lopez for the first three innings, striking out five times and getting just one hit.

It was a different story in the fourth. Jeter led off with a single and Gary Sheffield walked.

After Rodriguez struck out, Jorge Posada walked and Matsui followed with a double down the left-field line.

Bernie Williams added an RBI groundout and Clark capped the inning with a towering drive almost halfway into the upper deck in right to give the Yankees a 5-2 lead. HOWIE RUMBERG (AP)

Taylor Silently Returns to Camp

REDSKINS | Washington Redskins first-round draft pick Sean Taylor made a silent training camp debut Sunday, one day after sitting out the opening of camp with a sprained knee.

The No. 5 overall selection didn't have much to say about his first workout in full pads. In a bizarre scene, he maintained complete silence while reporters asked questions as he signed autographs following the practice. "I'm happy to be here," he finally said. (AP)

Singh Sinks Daly At Buick Classic

Woods finishes in third place during tune-up for PGA Championship

GOLF | Vijay Singh outlasted John Daly with a 5-under 67 Sunday to win the Buick Open at 23-under 265 for his fourth victory of the year and 19th of his career.

Daly, vying for a second win in one year for the first time, finished a stroke back after shooting a 66 and bogeying the 18th hole.

Tiger Woods started the day three strokes behind Singh, and pulled within a stroke while shooting a 66. He finished at 21 under, two strokes behind the winner and tied with Carlos Franco (67) for third.

Woods will look to snap his streak without a major at nine in two weeks at the PGA Championship.

Defending champion Jim Furyk, who shared the second-round lead with Singh, finished tied for sixth at 17 under after shooting a 68 on Sunday.

Singh holds up the fourth trophy he has won this year on the PGA Tour.

Singh's bogey at 18 created an opportunity for Daly to force a playoff, but Daly was unable to take advantage of Singh's late miscue.

Singh is just the third two-time Buick Open champion, and the first since Julius Boros won at Warwick Hills a second time in 1967.

Mystics Stay Hot Minus Holdsclaw

Melvin, Beard step up in Washington's 82-62
victory over Phoenix

WNBA | The Washington Mystics are filling the void left by Chamique Holdsclaw, who has missed three of the last four games with an undisclosed medical condition.

Chasity Melvin scored 17 points and rookie Alana Beard added 16 points and eight rebounds Sunday to lead the Mystics to an 82-62 victory over the Phoenix Mercury.

The Mystics have won two straight games without Holdsclaw, the league's second-leading scorer. Washington moved 1 1/2 games behind first-place New York in the tight Eastern Conference.

Stacey Dales-Schuman added 14 points and four assists for the Mystics, who shot a season-high 48.5 percent.

Holdsclaw missed a game at Charlotte on July 24 because of personal and medical reasons. She returned four days later for a loss to Detroit, then announced she would miss the next two games before the WNBA takes a monthlong break for the Olympics.

"We're still very concerned about Chamique and wish she could share this with us because it's important that we're playing like this and doing so well," Dales-Schuman said. (AP)

E-Mail Ennui

YOUR INBOX | Feel overrun with e-mail? Many of us are.

The volume of our inbox mail can be overwhelming, with 72 percent of us spending more time on e-mail than we did even a year ago, said Christina Cavanagh, a professor who specializes in workplace e-mail practices at The University of Western Ontario.

The North American average for workplace e-mail is now 54 a day, up 13 percent from 2002, and non-essential, non-spam messages have increased by 41 percent, according to Cavanagh's latest study.

"Unfortunately, what hasn't changed are the unproductive and cost-draining habits within organizations," she said. "Individuals seem to be trying to cope with their inboxes in whatever ways make sense for them, even if that means spending more personal time" at the office. (AP)

A Home in the Range | Realtor

JEWEL SNOWDEN, 25

JOB: Realtor with RE/MAX Pros

SALARY: $50,000 to $70,000

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in English from Georgetown University

WHAT SHE DOES: Snowden is a liaison between homebuyers and sellers, shepherding clients through the process of showings, negotiations and signing a contract. Her clients are primarily in Montgomery County, Md., but she works elsewhere in Maryland, the District and Virginia as well. Days begin with a couple dozen cold calls to homeowners, fishing for interest in selling (it works about as often as you'd think, but does lead to future work). Most of the day is spent on the road, viewing properties for sale and promoting her services.

WOULD YOU WANT HER JOB? She's an independent contractor (she pays a fee to affiliate with RE/MAX, after an initial interview), so Snowden triples as her own personal assistant and PR machine. Work hours are flexible but success will hinge on your hustle: "I could ... go to the grocery store and find two or three new clients. ... Every situation is networking." You'd better be a good accountant, too, since you never know when to expect that next commission check.

HOW YOU CAN GET HER JOB: Pass a licensing exam after finishing Realtor school — accredited schools can be found through state real estate agencies. Start-up cash will be needed for a slew of membership dues and insurance fees.

TV's Queen Victoria

Mob-daughter Gotti has three teen boys and a reality series

FAMILY TIES | Mob relations aside, don't mess with Victoria Gotti.

The curvy blonde raises three teenage boys by herself (ex-husband Carmine Agnello is in jail for racketeering and tax evasion) and cooks and cares for their huge Long Island home. She is the author of five books, a columnist at the celebrity publication "Star" and is starting her own magazine, "Red Carpet," where celebrities will write articles about their lives.

She's confrontational, quick-witted and isn't afraid to speak her mind no matter who she's talking to. Then again, she is the daughter of deceased mob boss John Gotti.

"Look, I loved my father and I love my family," she said. "But this is my life. I don't represent anyone else, it's about me and my children, and I want to make sure they do good in their lives."

Gotti and her sons are the subject of the new reality show "Growing Up Gotti," which premieres tonight on A&E. She said she did the show to clear up talk that she's "The Godmother" or that her family is the real-life Sopranos.

"I'm tired of everybody labeling

BLONDE ON A MISSION: Gotti gets teased and blown out before hosting a dinner party in the new series "Growing Up Gotti."

us as the 'first mob family,'" she said. "I have three young boys that have their own paths in life chosen."

Gotti said growing up in the spotlight, even for being a member of an infamous family, made it a bit easier to have the show's cameras there.

Her TV show is a weird glimpse into the family. John Gotti's picture sits on a table in the foyer. The huge home is ornate, but it's also messy and lived-in, the byproduct of three teenage sons.

In the first episode, her brother Peter drops by for dinner as she's telling her boys, Carmine, John and Frank, about going on a blind date. No one's happy about it.

It turns out the date, a bald guy named Ed, is less than perfect. He hints that she's spoiled, and that she's spoiled her kids. The Gottis' reactions to such situations are hilarious and kind of scary at the same time.

"I'll give you a thousand dollars if you take him to a ditch somewhere and roll him in," she jokes afterward to the limo driver. COLLEEN LONG (AP)

Words Get Hip

COINAGE | "Teensploitation's" time has come — at least in the dictionary.

"Pleather," "body wrap," "MP3," and "information technology" are among the other words and phrases that have gotten the nod from the editors at Merriam-Webster in the annual update of their Collegiate Dictionary.

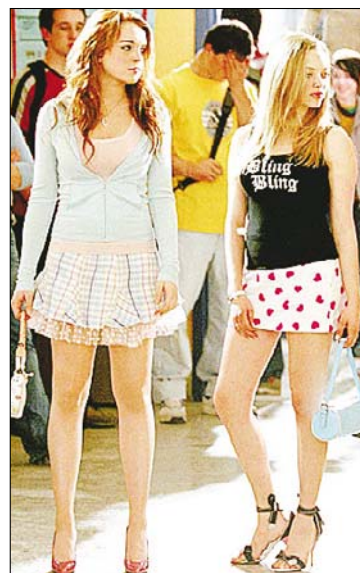

The inclusion of teensploitation — the exploitation of teenagers by the producers of teen-oriented films — comes 22 years after the word first appeared in show-business publications, said John M.

Morse, president and publisher of the Springfield-based dictionary company.

The word is an offshoot of "blaxploitation," coined in the 1970s to refer to the exploitation of blacks by film producers.

"It's interesting because we have a new word spawned by another a decade later," Morse said.

As a lexicographer, Morse said he approached the words with some caution, concerned they might be "a fad of the moment." Still, over the past two decades "teensploitation" has moved from entertainment magazines to mainstream publications such as Vogue, Vanity Fair and The New York Times.

And it is when a word or new usage becomes used with some frequency by the popular press that it becomes a candidate for the dictionary.

"Language is a window into our culture and history and the way we try to think," he said. "It is continually evolving and there are a lot of word enthusiasts in the world."

"Pleather" — a plastic fabric made to look like leather — first appeared in 1982 and "body wrap," referring to a beauty treatment, appeared in 1974.

But the Internet has speeded that up. And some of this year's new words had to wait a fraction of that time. TRUDY TYNAN (AP)

Kids Get a Move On

New games help young people off the couch

TECHNOLOGY | Some of the new video games on the market make children move more than their thumbs — they get the kids off the couch and get them to exercise.

With television and video games often blamed for contributing to the growing problem of obesity in children, video game makers and children's TV companies are creating shows and games that motivate children to move around or offer story lines that encourage exercise.

This fall, the Nickelodeon children's cable television network will introduce a program called "LazyTown," a blend of live action and animation, where the village's children are torn between a health-conscious superhero named Sportacus and lazy Robbie Rotten, who spends his days lounging around.

In video games, Sony Computer Entertainment America has done well with its new EyeToy series, which comes with a camera that sits on top of the TV, making the player the star of the screen. The series was made for PlayStation2. With EyeToy: Groove players dance to one of 28 pop tunes — and it comes with a calorie counter.

Unlike the other EyeToy versions, EyeToy: AntiGrav — a skateboarding or snowboarding game expected this fall — players use their bodies to control a character on screen; the camera uses a motion-tracking technology that instantly translates body movement into on-screen interaction.

Spider-Man 2 Web Action system has body sensors.

TOYQUEST/AP

Developing a video game that combines technology with exercise is tricky, according to Doug Lowenstein, president of Entertainment Software Association, an industry trade group.

"How many different types of games lend themselves to that experience?" asked Lowenstein. "The whole game has to be lots of fun. How do you translate the motion of movement that makes sense?"

Lowenstein and others say the video game Dance Dance Revolution — a video-driven dance game that created a craze in the nation's arcades and is now popular among video game players at the home — made the industry realize "gamers are willing to experience a game other than in a sitting position." ## Moore Makes the News

THE FRONT PAGE | Filmmaker Michael Moore's Bush-bashing documentary "Fahrenheit 9/11" has apparently upset more than the Republicans it targets.

The Pantagraph newspaper in Bloomington, Ill., said Friday it sent a letter to Moore and the film's distributor, Lions Gate Entertainment Corp., asking for an apology for using what it said was a doctored front page in his movie.

The paper is seeking $1 in damages.

A scene early in the movie shows newspaper headlines related to the contested 2000 presidential election. It includes a shot of The Pantagraph's Dec. 19, 2001, front page, with the prominent headline,

"Latest Florida recount shows Gore won election."

The newspaper says that headline never appeared on that day.

The paper said the headline appeared in a Dec. 5, 2001, edition but was not used on the front page.

Instead, it was found in much smaller type above a letter to the editor, which the paper says reflects "only the opinions of the letter writer."

Michael Moore may have to fork over one of his dollars for fiddling a headline.

"If [Moore] wants to 'edit' The Pantagraph, he should apply for a copy-editing job," the paper said.

Neither Lions Gate nor Moore were immediately available for comment. (AP)

GAME SHOWS | Sitcoms are considered the rainbow's end for comedians, but for "Balderdash" host and comedian Elayne Boosler, they mean waiting around all day to deliver "lines that aren't funny."

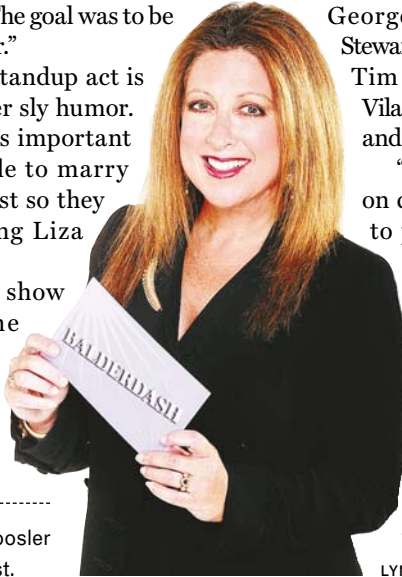

The “Balderdash” gig allows Boosler to work in a genre that honors improvisation — and reminds viewers they might like to catch her on stage.

get a sitcom. The goal was to be Richard Pryor.”

Boosler's standup act is marked by her sly humor. One joke: "It's important for gay people to marry each other just so they stop marrying Liza Minnelli."

The game show gives her the chance to give back to fellow comedians. Among her guests:

GAME ROOM: Boosler stands up to host.

George Wendt, French Stewart, Shelley Morrison, Tim Meadows, Bruce Vilanch, Maria Bamford and Todd Glass.

"Balderdash" calls on comics and actors to present information that may not be true and asks contestants to figure it out to win. "Don't worry. We're going to be very faithful to the novel," she assured fans of the board game.

ON TV TONIGHT

GROWING UP GOTTI (9:30 p.m., A+E) Clearly inspired by "The Osbournes," this show offers viewers a glimpse of the daily travails of Victoria Gotti, working single mother of three boorish boys. She's also the daughter of John Gotti, alleged head crime-family paterfamilias. We follow Victoria as she attempts to put her gigantic house on the market, attends an editorial meeting at Star magazine, where she's a gossip columnist, and goes on a blind date with a loser.

Director John Huston and producer Dino De Laurentiis spent a fortune trying to bring THE BIBLE (8 p.m., Fox Movie Channel) to the big screen in 1966, but the film barely covers the Book of Genesis. The all-star cast includes Richard Harris and Ava Gardner.

50 BUCKS ON THE CHEETAH

ANIMAL GAMES (9p.m., Discovery) Against a computer-generated virtual stadium, critters "compete" in Olympic events.

NORTH SHORE (8 p.m., Fox) Christopher MacDonal gueststars. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Tired of Elvis Knickknacks, Cage Adds to Wife Collection

NICOLAS CAGE, 40, got married for a third time in a private ceremony at a northern California ranch on Friday, his publicist announced. The bride, Alice Kim, 20, is a former sushi waitress who met Cage when he visited the Los Angeles restaurant where she worked. This is her first marriage. They started dating in February and reportedly became engaged after about two months. Cage was formerly married to Lisa Marie Presley and Patricia Arquette. (AP)

A New Holiday Fave: Hung By the Chimney With Care

WILLIAM HUNG is recording a Christmas album and starring in a Cantonese film, Reuters reported on Saturday. Hung said he expected the album to be released before Christmas, but didn't give any other details. "Singing and entertainment are now my first priority," Hung said. Hung, who skyrocketed to fame with a ear-shattering rendition of Ricky Martin's "She Bangs" on "American Idol," said his film debut would co-star veteran Hong Kong actress Nancy Sit Ka-yin Sit. ## TO THE EDITOR

I OPENED UP FRIDAY'S Express to find the word "misogyny" misused in Marilee Kane's letter to the editor on coverage of Teresa Heinz Kerry's "shove it" remark. Misogyny, say the dictionaries, is "hatred of women." There's surely a difference between bias toward a particular ideology and hating half the human race.

—MARK ANDERSON
Alexandria, Va.

HATS OFF TO Esther Suss (SportsWeekend, July 30) for coming back from end-stage emphysema to compete in the U.S. Transplant Games. Her goal of running the 5,000 meters "in 12 minutes" may be a little unrealistic, given that Kenenisa Bekele's world record is 12:37. Are you sure she didn't say 12 minutes per mile?

—DAVID HAAGA
Rockville, Md.

Editor's Note: Our mistake. Her goal was to run 12-minute miles.

Correction:

Friday's story "School Violence Feared" mischaracterized a statistic from a government survey on high school violence. One in 11 students questioned in 2003 said they had been threatened or injured by a weapon at school the previous year. That was an increase from 1 in 14 in 1993.

WRITE TO EXPRESS: Letters must include the writer's name, address and telephone number. Submissions may be edited for space. E-mail to inbox@readexpress.com or mail to Express Letters, PO Box I7370, Arlington, VA 22216.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Is it faith you lack, or merely inspiration and drive? By the end of the day, you'll be back in the swing of things — thanks to a close friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Maintain a down-to-earth approach and you'll win over the most formidable opposition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Remember the old adage: the early bird catches the worm. It is important for you to be ready for action as soon as possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — The mysterious and peculiar will hold a particular fascination for you throughout the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Don't try to second-guess the motives of a family member. Take it for granted that they are acting in an honest fashion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You will be able to attract a great deal of attention to yourself, but once all eyes are on you, your performance is what really counts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — A domestic adjustment is necessary soon, and you should be able to sound out the feelings of those who are most closely concerned.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — A project that seems to be a no-win situation for you may actually turn out to be a sure thing in the end. Concentrate on unseen forces.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — An unusual association can prove beneficial to you in the days to come. Open yourself up to all possibilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Someone may find your words and actions suspect, but the explanation is simple, and you must make it in good time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You'll enjoy the last-minute opportunity that may enable you to snatch victory from the jaws of defeat. Soon, you'll be riding a wave of success.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — A mutual understanding will develop between you and a rival. However, don't expect a lifelong friendship to form.

LIVE ONLINE

Gold Fever

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Fifteen-year-old Maryland native KATIE HOFF of Abingdon, Md., considered a contender for a gold medal in swimming at the 2004 Summer Olympics, was online Friday.

What would you say are the qualities of a good athlete? Do you have any pre-competition rituals that you do to get yourself ready for competition?

I think the qualities of a good athlete are determination, focus and having the ability to work hard and set goals. As for rituals, I don't have too many. Just normal ones ... make sure your goggles are tight and ready to go, but nothing like throw salt over my shoulder or something like that.

You'll be one of the youngest swimmers at the Olympics this year. At what point did you, your parents and your coaches realize that you had special talent and begin to truly train?

I think I always had the drive and hard work backing me up. But about a year out I started dropping times and really improving in my strokes and leg strength and that's when I realized I had a really good shot to make it.

What competitors or countries are you or the U.S. team wary of in Athens?

I think the Australians because they are a really strong team overall. I am probably biased, but I think the U.S. team is really strong right now and we have a great shot of really dominating. This is my first world competition.

What event are you most looking forward to at Athens to compete in and also to just watch?

I'm looking forward to competing in the 200 IM and I really want to watch the women's gymnastics.

Pork Creole

(Serve over rice.)

Serves: 4

5 Ingredients:

- 1 lb. center cut boneless pork chops
- 1 cup diced green pepper, fresh or frozen
- 14.5 ounce can stewed tomatoes
- 8 ounce can no-salt added tomato sauce
- 1 tsp. Creole or Cajun seasoning

30 Minutes:

Trim pork chops and cut into 1" chunks. Heat 1Tbsp. oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat. Add pork and brown, stirring frequently. Add green pepper to skillet and cook to soften, about 2 minutes. Add rest of ingredients to skillet. Bring to a boil, reduce heat to medium-low and cook 15-20 minutes until pork is cooked through.
